

TABLE OF CONTENTS

page

Chapter One

EXCHANGES AS INFORMATION PLATFORMS

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1. Exchanges as platforms: an analytical framework   | 1 |
| 2. Challenges and opportunities: the old and the new | 6 |

Chapter Two

LISTING: INSTITUTIONAL PERSPECTIVE

- |   |    |
|---|----|
| 1. The listing function and the declining numbers of listed companies | 11 |
| 2. Competition for listing services: general remarks                  | 14 |
| 3. The functions of regulated markets and the context of listing      | 17 |
| 4. The evolution of the listing industry                              | 21 |
| 5. Listing function and conflicts of interest                         | 24 |
| 6. Admission to listing in the European framework                     | 31 |
| 7. Admission to listing in Italy                                      | 34 |
| 7.1. The listing procedure  | 35 |
| 7.1.1. The role of Borsa Italiana                                     | 36 |
| 7.1.2. The role of Consob   | 38 |
| 8. Preliminary takeaways: listing functions in the Italian scenario   | 40 |
| 9. The allocation of listing functions to the NCA (the UK model)      | 43 |
| 10. Separating self-regulatory functions (the US model)               | 45 |
| 11. Assessment of the listing models                                  | 48 |
| 12. Preliminary conclusion  | 52 |

Chapter Three

LISTING: REGULATORY PERSPECTIVE

- |   |    |
|---|----|
| 1. Introduction   | 55 |
| 2. Direct listing: a solution to the IPO declining trend? | 58 |

	page
3. Direct listing: a tool for tech companies alone?	61
4. The mechanics of direct listing	62
4.1. Primary and secondary direct listing	64
5. IPO and direct listing in the EU	69
6. Ongoing disclosure duties and market platforms	74
7. An overview of issuer disclosure duties	75
8. Inside information and multistage events	78
9. Inside information and issuer disclosure duties	81
10. Delaying inside information disclosure	84
11. Delivering a better regulatory framework for listed companies	86

Chapter Four

TRADING: REGULATORY CONTEXT AND NEW TECHNOLOGIES

1. The trading function in the new technological landscape	91
2. High-frequency trading: market practices and definitions	93
3. Regulatory concerns: a taxonomy	96
4. High-frequency trading and market integrity: an assessment	97
4.1. Analytical framework	98
4.2. The remaining uncertainties on the impact of HFT	106
5. Regulating algorithmic and high-frequency trading: the status quo	110
5.1. Prudential regulation and conduct-of-business rules	110
5.2. The regulation of trading fees and co-location tariffs	112
6. The shortcomings of the current regulatory approach	114
7. Broadening the scope of the analysis	117
7.1. Admission of members	118
7.2. Trading rules and liquidity: market makers and tick size	119
7.3. From trading venues to an integrated marketplace: trading obligations and best execution	121
8. Preliminary conclusion	124

Chapter Five

DATA VENDING

1. Data-vending and the role of market data	125
2. Regulating pre-trade transparency regime: market structure and market failures	128
3. Calibrating pre-trade transparency	131
3.1. Equity and non-equity markets	131

	page
3.2. Trading systems and pre-trade transparency	133
4. Pre- and post-trade transparency: waivers, deferrals, and suspensions	140
5. The market for market data	142
5.1. Price regulation of market data	144
5.2. Price regulation and (the absence of) quality controls	148

Chapter Six
GOVERNANCE

1. Ownership structure: who should own regulated markets?	153
2. The regulation of regulated markets' ownership and governance	159

Chapter Seven
A NEW APPROACH TO
SECURITIES EXCHANGE REGULATION

1. Framing the role of regulation for regulated markets	163
2. The ecosystem of regulated markets: a regulatory perspective	164
3. Regulating the functions of securities exchanges: a holistic view	167
3.1. Listing	168
3.2. Trading	170
3.2.1. Adaptive dynamics in the trading industry	171
3.2.2. Adaptive dynamics among market participants	177
3.3. Data vending	180
3.3.1. The advantages of better calibrating price regulation	180
3.2.2. ... and its limitations	184
4. Conclusion. How to regulate regulated markets: principles for a policy agenda	188

LIST OF REFERENCES

Bibliography	191
Documents	203