

Table of contents

	pag.
Authors	XI
Preface	XV

Part I TECHNOLOGY AT WORK

New technology and labour law: challenges and perspectives Antonio Lo Faro	3
Boss ex machina : employer powers in workplaces governed by algorithms and artificial intelligence Antonio Aloisi	15
Algorithms, blockchain, smart contracts. Some introductory considerations for a labour law approach Stefano Bini	35
When data analytics meets the workplace. A (labour) law and IR perspective on the so-called HR or workforce analytics Emanuele Dagnino	47
Privacy, controls, and new technology Elena Gramano	61
Artificial Intelligence as the third element of labour relations. Lessons from the Italian reform of workers' classification system Michele Faioli	75

Part II

PLATFORM AT WORK

Online platforms as labour market intermediaries Luca Ratti	89
Platforms as service providers? A labour law perspective Annamaria Donini	105
Classifying digital platform workers Piera Loi	123
Beyond employment: the protection of platform workers in a holistic perspective Marco Biasi	139
The collective representation of platform workers: struggles, achievements and opportunities Giuseppe Antonio Recchia	153
Bibliography	173